

MAN HURT IN TRACTOR ACCIDENT

Wife Dies On Day Of Her Husband's Funeral

By a strange coincidence, Ruth Fleischauer, 45 years old, widow of the late Wm. Fleischauer, former tax collector of Bremen township died at her home in Oak Forest, Friday morning of last week, at 8 o'clock following a heart attack. Mrs. Fleischauer passed away on the day of her husband's funeral which was to have been held that afternoon, but which was postponed until Monday when a double funeral was held at the Hope Lutheran church in Midlothian with the Rev. Mr. Nash officiating.

Mrs. Fleischauer is survived by her daughter Lillian, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Evans, three sisters, Fern, Grace and Shirley. Three brothers, Clem, Orville and Elbert. The Krueger Funeral service of Oak Forest was in charge of the double funeral. Burial was made at the Cedar Park Cemetery.

PURCHASES OLD BLAZER PROPERTY IN MOKENA

Mr. Jaynes of Alpine, an official of Sears-Roebuck, purchased the former Blazer property the past week from the mortgage holders Wm. Helgenhouse, Geo. Knudson and August Hentsch. Mr. Jaynes has commenced remodeling operations on the property which it is understood is to be converted into a modern three flat apartment building.

AIR ALERT SUCCESS

On Monday afternoon Mokena had another Air Alert.

At 3:30 o'clock the Alert Siren was sounded and lasted until 4 o'clock.

The Air Raid Wardens were at their stations. The Alert was deemed a success also for a few persons forgetting when they heard the siren wondered where the fire was.

ST. JOHN'S YOUNG PEOPLE TO PRESENT A PROGRAM

The Young People's League of St. John's Evangelical church, Mokena, is sponsoring another special program.

On April 4, at 7:45 they are presenting Mr. Abraham Akakka, an Hawaiian Ministerial student at Chicago Theological Seminary.

Mr. Akakka will sing and play, show lantern slides of Hawaii and give a christian message.

Admission will be by tickets and may be purchased from Y. P. L. members or at the church parlor door.

Everyone is invited to attend

CARD OF THANKS

We sincerely wish to thank all those friends and neighbors who sent flowers, and donated the use of their automobiles, also the singers and Rev. Helm for his comforting words.

The SCHOENECK FAMILY

EXAMINATIONS FOR GUARD DUTY NOW OPEN

Saturday of this week is the last day for filing applications for the next examination for Guard positions in the Illinois State penal institutions. Men who are between 25 and 60 years of age, at least 5 feet, 7 inches tall, weigh at least 150 lbs. and have the equivalent of a grade education are urged to file their applications with the Illinois State Civil Service commission by April 3.

The Commission announces that examinations will be held in centers wherever there are a sufficient number of candidates, so that applicants will not be forced to travel long distances. Starting salary for Guard is $120 a month plus maintenance, and is automatically increased to $132 plus maintenance after three months.

Full details concerning the examination may be obtained from the State Civil Service commission, at Springfield or from US employment offices, county departments of public welfare and offices of the Public Aid commission.

SANGMEISTER TO PRESENT HOUSE NUMBERING PLAN TO BOARD

Village President Geo. Sangmeister of Frankfort, who has been persistent in his efforts to number houses and erect street signs will present a plan to members of the village board at their next regular meeting which will be held at the village hall Monday evening. He has received an estimate from Mulford and McCoy, Chicago Heights engineers submitting plans for surveying lots and numbering each twenty five feet. A project for sign posts will also be discussed at the meeting.

Soldier Takes Bride at beautiful Church Wedding

Sunday afternoon, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Dennis church in Lockport, when Miss Dorothy Ann Hartman became the bride of Pfc Frank Ohla, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ohla of Bruce Rd. All relatives and friends of the bridal couple were invited.

The bride was very charming in a street length dress of light blue crepe with Talisman rose accessories. She also wore a small hat trimmed with pink and a corsage of pink Talisman roses and blue sweet peas.

Miss Kathryn Timm of Lockport was the bridesmaid and wore a street length gown of grey crepe with dusty rose accessories, a small hat and a corsage of pink carnations and sweet peas. John Kopek of Joliet acted as best man, while Robert Ohla and Merlin Jungles were ushers.

At 6:30 o'clock a wedding dinner was served at the Louis Joliet hotel to immediate members of the families and the bridal party.

In the evening a reception was held at the Moose Hall in Lockport. A three piece orchestra furnished music for dancing. The bridal couple received beautiful gifts and a large sum of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Ohla have departed for a short honeymoon but Frank will return to his camp April 5. At Camp Campbell, Kentucky, Frank entered the service on Oct. 21, 1942.

LANDING FIELD LEASED FOR NAVY BOYS OF LEWIS HOLY NAME TRAINING SCHOOL

The Turgon Flying Service has leased property on the Blodgett and Handorf farms for a landing field for the duration.

The landing field is to be used by the Navy boys of the Lewis Holy Name Training school of Lockport.

MORE VOLUNTEER WORKERS NEEDED FOR MOKENA RED-X

There is still need for more volunteer workers to make Surgical dressings in the Red Cross work rooms in Mokena. Will County has a tremendous quota to fill during April, hence it is necessary that every branch in the county produce more dressings.

Therefore we hope to see many new faces among the workers at the new work room in Mrs. Sippel's store on Front street, Mokena. Many more women can be accommodated than have been turning out for this vital work. The Red Cross belongs to every one of us. Therefore it is our patriotic duty to back our fighting men upon the battle fronts of the world by giving them all the Surgical dressings that the Surgeon General of the Army says are needed.

Since January Mokena has completed 6,400 dressings with 215 workers for a total of 625 hours of work. There have been 12 women sewing hospital shirts, pajamas etc. Total hours 423. 13 women knitting, some making as many as three or four garments. Their combined hours total 536. This is a fine record, but let's try and double these totals during the next quarter period.

The workroom is open every Monday from 10 am. to 4 pm. and Monday evening from 7 to 10. Please wear a washable house dress smock or apron.

AFTER TWO MONTHS REST PALOS WOMAN'S CLUB STARTS

The Palos Woman's Club has started up again after a two months' rest.

The first meeting was devoted to old and new business. Luncheon committee consisted of Mrs. Charles Retzke, chairman, and Mesdames Otto Schmidt, H. P. Sherwood, Jas. Miller, Jr., Thomas Hammer and Arthur Wesley. A Red Cross program was held in the afternoon with Mrs. Martin Olsen, co-chairman in charge. Mrs. Neil Anderson, introduced Mrs. Martin a speaker from Red Cross headquarters and later movies on "The Blood Donor Unit" and "Pearl Harbor" were shown.

The Literature group met at the home of Mrs. J. L. Collins, president. Every member has been requested by Mrs. Donald Bond to write a 1000 word autobiography.

The next meeting was held at the village hall with the 2 p. m. program under the direction of Mrs. Peter Wagner, chairman of Occupational Therapy and at 2:30 Mrs. Glenn Harding, chairman of Education presented Mrs. R. M. Watkins who gave her interpretation of Dante's "Divine Comedy".

RAISE $5.00 FOR RED CROSS

During the past month the children of Kirby School, Dist. 140, on 171st St., west of Tinley Park, have raised $5.00 between them for the Junior Red Cross drive. This is quite remarkable as the total enrollment of the school is seven pupils.

These pupils are: Kenneth Brandau, Madeline Gini, Lee Roy Bettenhausen, Elaine Schuldt, Marvin Meyer, Phyllis Bettenhausen and Helen Schuldt. Their teacher is Mrs. Alice M. Hurst.

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH!

"You watch the road, Ed—I'll shift the gears."

PALOS PARK SCHOOL TO BUY RIFLE AND BAYONET

The Palos Park school are proud to report that they have collected $80 to buy a Garand Rifle and Bayonet. They are also trying to sell enough Defense Bonds and Stamps to buy a Jeep.

The school has been enrolled in the Schools at War Jeep Campaign which is sponsored by the Treasury Department. The goal is 10,000 Jeeps by April 19, Minute Man Day.

The price set is $900 and up to date they have $22.09 to go and are now hoping to exceed that and buy another jeep. Those wishing to help the children in this drive need only to come to the school in person where you sign your application slips and pay the money. That in turn is taken to the Post Office to purchase the bond but the school gets the credit.

These boys and girls are working very hard in this campaign and would like any assistance that you give them.

Free Classes In Farm Carpentry At Joliet High School

Beginning Saturday, April 3 and continuing April 10, 17 and 24, free classes in Farm Carpentry will be held in the Joliet Township High school woodshop, it was announced by E. W. Rowley, vocational agriculture instructor at the school.

Ivan Baldwin, woodshop instructor will teach the classes which will be held from 8 o'clock Saturday morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. A leeway for chores will be made.

The purpose of the class is to give farmers a place in which to construct things needed on their farms and not to make carpenters.

Plans for hog houses, poultry brooder houses, hog feeders, poultry feeders, water stacks and pug brooder houses are available.

Tools will be furnished by the wood shop, said Mr. Rowley, but materials would have to be furnished by the enrollee. Both second hand and new lumber can be used satisfactorily for many of the articles. Assistance will be given in the selection of lumber. Enrollment may be made by contacting the agriculture department at the high school. The course, similar to the successful class held during Christmas vacation, is sponsored by the Rural War Production board, was requested by several members of the first class.

FARMERS PLAN GREAT INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

Illinois farmers plan to increase their spring plantings by more than one half a million acres over the areas planted a year ago, the Illinois Cooperative Reporting Service of the state and federal departments of agriculture announce. Corn, soy beans, oats and hay are the big four of Illinois spring planting constituting about 98 percent of the total acreage. Corn, with a prospective 74,000 acres represents about 45 percent of the expected total spring plantings. Soy beans, with 4,216,000 acres, represents 22 percent of the spring crop acreage. Oats ranks third with 3,392,000 acres of 17-12 percent of the total. Hay, with 2,511,000 acres represents 13 percent.

Elmer Benson, Mokena Farmer Seriously Injured

Mr. Elmer Benson, of Mokena, Illinois, was seriously injured, Tuesday afternoon about 3 o'clock, when he was knocked down by a tractor in his yard.

Mr. Benson had purchased a new tractor, and was being instructed how to use it; not knowing the machine was in gear the instructor started to run it, knocking Mr. Benson down hurting his right side quite seriously.

Dr. W. V. Hedges, of Frankfort was called to care for the injured man, but due to severe shock he was unable to move him to the hospital.

PALOS CHILDREN ATTENDS COOK COUNTY ACHIEVEMENT OFFICERS CONVENTION

All the children from Palos that attended the annual Cook County Achievement Officers' Convention held last week at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson Park report a very enjoyable day.

The program opened at 10:30 A. M. with the Posting of Colors by James Giles School, District No. 80 followed by the Star Spangled Banner. Noble J. Puffer, County Superintendent of Schools then spoke and the Matteson School gave a demonstration of how and Achievement Club Meeting should really be presented. Joseph H. Spear, Ex-Director of Pan-American Council then spoke on "Lands and Peoples of South America". The meeting adjourned at 11:45 for tours and luncheon. During this time the children went down in a coal mine which proved interesting to them and the teachers as well. Another interesting exhibit they saw was on airplanes— from the first ever made by the Wright Brothers right down to the present Bomber and Trans-Atlantic ship. The afternoon program ended with the Cook County Achievement yell. All the children and teachers returned home tired and weary but bursting with interesting things to tell their Mothers and Dads and fellow school mates.

BOWMAN DAIRY CO. RELEASES FIGURES ON CASH PAYMENTS TO FARMERS

February cash payment figures to dairy farmers in this section were released this week by the Bowman Dairy Co. During the month farmers delivering milk to Bowmans Frankfort Mokena receiving plant received $18,995.44.

When the figures were released, Dr. D. B. Peck, President of the Bowman Dairy Co, said: "The Bowman farm family is to be commended on the ability to maintain the standard of production in these times with the shortage of labor most every farm has experienced."

LATEST CONTRIBUTIONS TO MOKENA RED-X WAR FUND

A few more contributions have been received since the last report and our receipts now total $517.07.

The drive officially closed March 31st but we will be glad to receive your contributions for a few more days before closing our books.

O. C. D. SCRAP DRIVE

Arrangements have been made to pick up scrap metals and paper this Saturday afternoon, April 3rd.

As the truck is being donated together with the time of the men and boys please have every thing at the curb ready to be lifted into the truck.

If newspapers are donated be sure that they are securely tied in bundles. Use strong cord as the bundles will probably have rough handling before they are transferred to the yards.

DON'T INCLUDE ANY TIN CANS, a deposit station for cleaned cans will be established later.

NO SLAUGHTERING PERMIT NECESSARY FOR HOME USE

Farmers who slaughter meat for home consumption on their farms are not required to obtain slaughtering permits, the Will county US Department of Agriculture War Board announces. When a farmer sells any rationed foods, however, he automatically becomes a distributor and must collect ration stamps when he makes a sale and must surrender them to OPA. Permits are required to sell meat.

2. Braun's Recreation	48	39	58549
3. Mokena Oil Co.	47	40	63805
4. Cooper & Hostert	43	44	62449
5. Mokena State Bank	36	51	53950
6. Mokena Walpaper	36	51	55422

Robinson's Tavern assured themselves of at least a tie for the title last night as they downed the Mokena Walpaper Co., for two games while the second place Braun's Recreation were dropping two games to Cooper & Hostert. The Robins now have a 3-game lead over the Smokers with three games to go next Monday night and need to win only one game or the Smokers to lose a game to win the pennant. The anticipated rout of the Robins by the Paperhangers never materialized as the tavern crew bowled like champions although George Rinke said they had a sixth man with them.

Who was the sixth man? Why it was Mr. Rinke. The Smokers handed two games to the V-Eighters as they blew 9 frames out of the last 10 in one game and seven out of ten in the other after having a lead in each game. Burkhardt and Spiess were off form as the teams title chances drew dimmer as the games went along.

The Mokena Oil Co., continued their winning streak as they swept three games from the Mokena Bankers, by taking three games they crept up to one game behind the Smokers with a chance of taking second place from the Smokers.

Next week we have the Oilers playing the Robins on alleys 3 & 4 and should prove to be a battle with the Robins cinching a title and the Oilers eyeing second place.

We have the same situation on alleys 5 & 6 when the Paperhangers meet the Smokers as the Smokers seek a tie for the title and the Paperhangers are out to vacate the cellar position.

On alleys 1 & 2 the V-Eighters play the Bankers and the only inter est there is the Bankers, if they can win more games than the Paperhangers to take fifth place. The V-Eighters are entrained in fourth place, with a chance of going anywhere.

Washington, D. C. SOPHOMORE CONGRESSMEN

The President's heralded meeting with congressional freshmen had an unheralded sequel on Capitol Hill. Day after the White House party, 19 second-term house Democrats held a luncheon in Speaker Sam Rayburn's private dining room, at which there was considerable good-natured, and some not so good-natured, grouching about the President's relations with congress.

Object of the luncheon, arranged by Rep. Oren Harris of Arkansas, was to enable the second-termers to "console" each other for not being invited to the White House for a party when they were freshmen.

Among others, Rep. Sam Russell and Eugene Worley of Texas took great delight in joshing Rayburn: "Sam, why can't you get us an invitation to the White House?"

However, the luncheon took a serious turn when scrappy Rep. Edward Hebert of Louisiana lambasted the White House for not consulting with congress on new legislation, and criticized his colleagues for submitting to White House "dictates." Observing that only 26 of the 45 Democratic freshmen of the last session survived the November elections, the Louisianan declared:

"If a lot of us had paid more attention to our constituents instead of to White House advisers, there wouldn't be so few of us here today. In the last year of Huey Long's tenure, he controlled both houses of the Louisiana legislature completely except for one man. But Huey didn't try to ram through any bills without letting each man know what was going on and making him feel like he had a stake in the program. We in congress haven't been treated like that."

Hebert said he held no enmity against the House leadership, adding to Rayburn:

"I've always been very fond of you, but I've never been able to vote for you on a national ticket. I hope I will be able to cast my ballot for you next year, either as top man or running mate on the Democratic ticket."

This brought loud cheers from the luncheoners and blushes from Rayburn, who responded with a fatherly lecture urging those present not to let personal animosities influence their actions in congress.

AMERICAN BOMBERS

Despite the criticism you may hear of American planes, U. S. air-men who have studied the current bombings of Europe say privately that one American bomber is worth five of the British.

American planes are heavily armed and heavily armored. Able to protect themselves, they operate in the daylight, with precision bombing, whereas the British planes, flying at night, must lay down a pattern of bombs over a whole area, hoping that the principal target will be hit.

British planes can carry a heavier load of bombs, but the fewer bombs carried by the American planes are more effective because they go straight to the target.

Further, American planes have suffered fewer losses proportionately than the British, both operational and combat losses.

In fact the American contribution is so important that the all-out bombing of Germany must await the availability of more U. S. planes.

Most people think there is a heavy concentration of American planes in England now, and that the current round-the-clock bombings are the big show. Neither is correct.

There was a concentration of U. S. planes in England last summer and fall, made with intended publicity. This had the effect of sending the Nazis scurrying all over western Europe to mend their defenses. Then U. S. air strength was pulled out of England for the mission it had been intended for—the invasion of North Africa.

U. S. air strength in England is now being built up again, and when the time comes, the two air forces combined will stage the show intended to knock Germany out of the war.

MEXICO BARS MIGRATION

No one is advertising it, but Mexico has slapped a temporary ban on the recruitment of its workers for farm jobs in the United States.

This was expected to be one of our big sources of farm labor in the Southwest. However, no Mexican laborers have been imported in more than a month, despite feverish efforts by the Farm Security administration to bring in approximately 50,000.

Mexico is not keen about the recruiting program, and some time ago notified the state department that it was reserving the right to specify the sections of Mexico where labor could be recruited. Reason given was that Mexico couldn't afford to have labor drained from industrial sections.

Meanwhile the Farm Security administration has submitted orders for 6,000 Mexicans, but is still waiting for an okay to begin recruiting.

Note: So far we have imported 5,500 Mexican farm workers under 30-to-90 day work contracts.

Capt. Joe Foss and His 'Flying Circus'

One of the hottest fighter squads in the South Pacific area is a marine outfit known as the "Flying Circus," led by Capt. Joe Foss of Sioux Falls, S. D., top American ace of the war. The squadron has bagged more than 60 Jap planes, and Foss himself has more than 26 confirmed victories. Foss, smoking his characteristic cigar, is shown in the center, while around him, reading from top left around the bottom to top right are, Oscar Bate, Greg Loesch, Tom Furlow, Roger Haberman, Frank Presley and Bill Freeman.

Pledge Help for Paralysis Fund

Movie stars at the White House pledge help for the paralysis fund. Shown, left to right, are Lloyd Richards, production co-ordinator of picture "Forever and a Day," all profits accruing from which will be turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. C. Aubrey Smith presented the pledge to the President. Next in line are Roland Young, Brian Aherne, Mrs. C. A. Smith, Ruth Warwick, who plays the lead in the picture; Lady Warwick—and President Roosevelt.

Road Mine Exploded Under His Lorry

Dazed and hurt, British lorry driver Leonard Orchard, is assisted by a comrade after his lorry struck a land mine in North Africa. This action took place in the western desert during one of Gen. Bernard Montgomery's victories over the enemy, in co-operation with the royal navy.

U. S. Fliers 'Daddies-by-Adoption' in China

Doing things in traditional open-handed American fashion, soldiers stationed in China have adopted homeless Burmese orphans, providing them with food and board. A group of fliers is shown here, each with his little charge astride. They seem to be enjoying themselves immensely.

Good Will Tour

Seven South and Central American republics were on the good will itinerary of Vice President Wallace, for discussions with representatives of the various countries. These men accompanied Wallace on the good will trip: left to right, Laurence Duggan, adviser on political relations, department of state. James D. Le Cron, and Hector Lazo, assistant director in charge of exports. Vice President Wallace is seated.

Young Early on K. P.

Stephen T. Early Jr., 19-year-old son of President Roosevelt's secretary, is shown taking his turn at dish washing in a Camp Croft infantry training battalion. Young Early was inducted on March 2 at Camp Lee, Va. He was called while attending Staunton, Va., military academy.

Seeks Closer Ties

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, who flew here for a series of conferences designed to clear the way for meetings between all the United Nations on problems arising out of the war, is shown arriving at the White House. Last year Eden negotiated a 20-year alliance between Britain and Russia.

Victory Slogan

John F. Noon, Detroit defense plant worker, is tossing a thumb proudly at the slogan that won him first prize in a slogan contest. "You can't spell victory with an absent T" was the bon mot that scored for Mr. Noon.

PETER AND JOHN BECAME DISCIPLES OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 1:29-42; Mark 1:16-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1:17.

Personal faith in Christ is the heart of Christian experience. Since persons are won by other persons it was vitally important that the Lord choose the right disciples at the very beginning of the Church. Outstanding among the twelve disciples were Peter and John, whose lives and letters we study during the next three months.

The manner in which they became disciples is of unusual interest—and is instructive as well. We will observe that our Lord is working in much the same way on the Peters and Johns of our own day. They came to Him by way of

1. Testimony—They Heard About Jesus (John 1:29-34, 41).

John, who modestly refrains from naming himself (v. 40), heard about Jesus from John the Baptist. His testimony is notable for its pointed presentation of Christ, and its unmistakable desire that they follow Him. John was an important man with a vigorous message, but he recognized that his only real business for God was to point men to Christ. He enjoyed having men follow him, but only that he might lead them to Jesus.

In doing Christian work we should learn so to bear our testimony that we may magnify Christ, and not ourselves. We must be careful to win men to Christ, and not to ourselves or our cause or church.

Peter was brought to Jesus by his brother Andrew. Andrew was a quiet, modest man of whom we do not read that he preached a single sermon. But he did do personal work (see John 6:8, 9; 12:21, 22). He has been called "Andrew the finder." May "his tribe" increase. We need more like him.

Hearing about Jesus is not enough. There must be the next step, the indispensable personal meeting with the Lord.

II. Experience—They Saw Jesus (John 1:35-39, 42).

The necessity of a personal experience with Christ is so clearly stated in Scripture that one can only marvel that it is so neglected in many churches today.

Neither John the Baptist nor, later, Andrew was content to tell about Jesus. They brought John and Peter to the Lord. John said, "Behold the Lamb of God" (v. 36); and Andrew "brought him to Jesus" (v. 42). These sum up the soul-winner's duty. We must bring our family, our friends, yes, the stranger with whom we deal, into the presence of Jesus.

He will look into their eyes and into their souls and see in them all the gifts and graces which may make them useful to Him (v. 42). John was the brother of James and Peter the brother of Andrew—just two humble fishermen in the sight of men. But Jesus saw in them two of the most useful men who have ever lived. Let us give Him a chance to deal with our friends and acquaintances.

Hearing and seeing are both excellent, but they lack one final step—and here it is—

III. Action—They Followed Jesus (John 1:40; Mark 1:16-20).

First of all they followed Jesus in becoming believers on Him as the Messiah. That experience of John's we find in John 1:40, and of Peter's (by inference) in verse 42. There is no salvation apart from that act of the will which follows a knowledge of Christ.

In the passage in Mark we find Him calling them to leave their secular calling as fishers of fish to follow Him and become fishers of men. Before they could become what He wanted them to be, they had to do something—rise up and follow Him.

Their unquestioning response indicated their faith, but, more than that, it showed that they were the kind of obedient men who could be used of the Lord. Jesus might have called His disciples from the learned and the mighty. But one wonders whether they would have been willing to respond without argument, and to learn of Him without prejudice or preconceived ideas of theology.

God must often pass the mighty and the noble of this world, and call those who are foolish enough to believe Him and obey (read I Cor. 1:17-29). The reason is given there—"That no flesh should glory in his presence." The glory belongs to the Lord, not to His servants.

Because they did obey they became "fishers of men." He led them, trained them, encouraged them, blessed them, and used them.

A disciple is a "learner," but he is learning for a purpose. Learning for its own sake, as an ornament or a selfish pleasure, is always a sad thing, but with the disciple of Christ it cannot be that if he rightly knows Christ.

The disciple is to win other disciples. That is the very heart of Christian witness.

Our Deeds

Our deeds determine us as much as we determine our deeds; and until we know what has been or will be after the peculiar combination of outward and inward facts, which constitute a man's critical actions, it will be better not to think ourselves wise about his character.

Above Loch Lomond

Scotland's Ben Lomond, over 3,000 feet high and covered with grass to the top, can be ascended between steamer calls, a little more than two hours going up, less coming down. Loch Lomond, at its foot, is the largest lake in Great Britain.

Bathe Before Dinner

Since it is a Japanese custom to bathe before dinner, many Japanese hotels are equipped with elaborate common bathing rooms, profusely decorated, sometimes with variegated tiles, fountains, or aquaria set in the walls and ceilings.

Greatest Jumping Mammal

The greatest jumping mammal is the Jumping Mouse, Zapus hudsonius, of North America. This little rodent, having exceptionally powerful hind legs, is able to leap 40 times its own length.

The Conservatory

A conservatory is a small greenhouse or glass house usually attached to a house. The same term is applied to a greenhouse where there is a display of foliage and flowering plants.

Sweet Limes

The honey usually served with breakfast rolls and coffee in Czechoslovakia has a unique fragrance: that of the lime trees from which Czech bees get the material for their product.

Resembles Pig and Elephant

A tapir is a large thick-skinned mammal with the nose prolonged into a short trunk. In appearance the animal somewhat resembles the pig and the elephant.

Formation of Mammoth Cave

Mammoth Cave, Kentucky, was formed while the Green river was eroding its valley, which happened in the glacial epoch—or fairly recently in geologic time.

U. S. Steel Reports 1942 Production 28 Per Cent Greater Than World War I Peak

United States Steel Corporation's Annual Report for 1942, reporting attainment of a steel ingot tonnage production 28 per cent greater than in the peak year of World War I, has just been released as "a production story—and a financial story—of a great war effort."

Production by U. S. Steel in 1942 of more than 30,000,000 net tons of ingots as well as the manufacture of a steady flow of products entering into thousands of items used in prosecuting the war were described by Irving S. Olds, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in his review of the year contained in the Corporation's forty-first annual report. The victory parade of steel ingots was listed as only one of several principal contributions of U. S. Steel to the war effort. These contributions were enumerated as follows: "First, a record volume of steel and other materials needed not only for the fabrication of essential war products but also for the creation of new facilities to make such war products has been produced. Second, the technical ability representing many decades of accumulated research and experience has been made available for the requirements of the Government. Third, the construction and operation of vast new facilities for the Government in connection with the war effort have been undertaken. Fourth, millions of dollars of U. S. Steel's funds have been expended for various facilities contributory to the war effort."

A one-page condensation of the financial record of the Corporation for the year describes in simple language what disposition was made of the $1,385,951,682 received by the Corporation from sales of its products and services during 1942. Employment costs of $783 million in 1942 were 25% greater than for the previous year; 1942 taxes of $204 million were 10% greater than the preceding year; while dividends to stockholders remained unchanged. "No amount carried forward for future needs of the Corporation was 78% less than in 1941."

Among achievements cited is the development of the airplane landing mat. The serious problem of handling plane landings on hastily built air fields was solved with the war-time invention by Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, a U. S. Steel subsidiary, of a landing mat, consisting of portable interlocking steel sections. It was pronounced the outstanding development of the year in the field of aviation by the Chief of the Army Air Force. As mass production methods were evolved, other companies were licensed to use the process, and thirty smaller manufacturers are now producing these landing mat sections in quantity.

The report reveals that in 1942 one subsidiary, Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, completed more destroyers for the Navy Department in shorter building time than any other shipyard in the country. A new shipyard built by this subsidiary for the Navy Department began operations five months after ground was broken. A fully equipped shipyard for the production of the latest type of tank landing craft was constructed and is being operated for the Navy Department by American Bridge Company, another subsidiary.

An interesting comparison of the use of U. S. Steel's own resources and the Government funds for the expansion of emergency facilities undertaken by U. S. Steel from June, 1940, to the end of 1942, shows that the ratio of U. S. Steel's investment to the use of Government funds was 65c of its own money to every dollar of Government funds used. This compares with a ratio for all industry of 27c of private funds to one dollar of Government funds. In this expansion program, U. S. Steel's private investment was $282,000,000, as compared with $436,000,000 of Government funds expended, making a total of $718,000,000 expended in the program.—Adv.

MURDER at PIRATE'S HEAD

By ISABEL WAITT

W-N-U RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Judy Jason, who is telling the story, receives an anonymous letter enclosing $800 and asking her to bid for an abandoned church to be auctioned the next day. She gets the church, only to find, in an old chest, the body of a man identified as Roddy Lane. The body disappears a few hours later. A fish shed burns, apparently killing an old man named Brown who is supposed to have lived there. While exploring the "Pirate's Mouth" for clues, Lily Kendall sees something which frightens her. Judy finds Roddy Lane's diamond in her bag. A cry brings the guests hurrying down to the "Pirate's Mouth."

Now continue with Judy's story.

CHAPTER XIII

Even Bessie Norcross regained enough energy to tag along, with poor Thaddeus Quincy rolling himself down the bumpy path, last of all. Aunt Nella was the only one who stayed on the job at the inn.

I could see Victor passing the steps of the Church as I came alongside the gruesome body in the charred place where the fish house had been. He wasn't going to the basement then. Now, he was making for the ledge above Pirate's Mouth. I could see him throwing himself at full length. Two others lay down beside him. They got up and the rest of them lay down. What had they found?

I came up to where Potter and the minister and Hugh were still lying on the ground, as Victor turned and saw me.

"So you've seen it? She knew it was there. She thinks you put it there!"

"What, in heaven's name?" The others came scrambling to their feet. "Say that again, Judy," Hugh said. "You mean Miss Kendall thought Quade put something down there?"

Gosh, he was mad. Hugh pulled me away and stood back himself, as if he expected Victor to push one of us over the cliff. I saw I had pulled another boner—and against Victor Quade, the one person I trusted!

He smiled faintly. "Let's have it, Judy. Say just what you did before. She knew it was there? What?"

"I don't know. Something—something she thought you knew was there—but, for reasons of your own, perfectly good reasons, of course, kept still about." Was I making it worse?

I went over to the rock and lay down and got a look at what I can never forget to my dying day. Poor Lily Kendall lay sprawled in the far cleft of the Pirate's Mouth. Even I, who have heretofore seen practically no death at close range, knew she was gone. Her eyes stared sightlessly at the deep blue sky. Her body, too large to slide through the hideous rocky maw, had stuck grotesquely. But the horrible thing—! A wave of nausea crept over me as I realized that the scarf around Lily's milk-white neck was blue!

Above me I could hear Hugh's voice grow strident, accusing Victor. Others chimed in. Victor himself dragged me to my feet.

"Go back, dear. Go with Bessie. We've got to get past you." He turned around and cried, "Here, Norcross, make yourself useful. Take these two girls back to the inn and keep 'em there."

"And give you a chance to destroy some evidence! I guess not. You tied that scarf around her throat and you know it."

"What scarf?" Bessie's haunted eyes sought mine.

I shook my head. "It's blue. A sort of French blue."

Bessie turned and ran.

The men were already making their way into the Pirate's Mouth, all of them, except the minister.

Victor, Uncle Wylie, Hugh and Potter were all on that narrow shelf. I lay down on the rock and watched. The nausea had gone, but it returned a moment later when Mr. Quincy's wheels hit my feet.

"What the hell's going on down there?" he demanded, thumping the rock.

"It's Miss Kendall. She fell over!"

"Keep by me, child," Quincy said, shaking his head at De Witt. "Don't get near the edge again—with anybody." He'd whispered the last two words, but the minister wasn't paying any attention.

I saw him hold down a hand, and presently Uncle Wylie's head appeared. Hugh came next, then Potter and Quade, the last without his coat.

The questions Thaddeus Quincy hurled at those silent men!

"Did she fall? How did it happen? Speak, man, can't you?"

Let the others answer questions. Victor walked with me. "Now, we've got to do something. Break in the Lane boat house, I'd suggest."

"There's an idea," Potter quaked.

Uncle Wylie, for all his lean years, kept well ahead of everybody. He was hurrying to find a second suitable covering for the body, but he paused to call over his shoulder: "Judy, better come along with me. This ain't no fitten comp'ny for a young girl."

"He's right," Hugh dropped back a step and shouted, "I'll stay with her, Mr. Gerry!" Then he noticed Bessie wasn't with us. "Where's my sister?" he cried, his face full of terror.

"Keep your shirt on," Quincy answered. "Got too thick for her. She took it on the lam back to the inn."

Hugh grabbed me by the arm and held me back while the others went on. I didn't like it. I wanted to hear everything, and also, I'm not ashamed to confess, to keep with the crowd. If Lily Kendall could be killed for nothing by this—this maniac, how much more might he wish to get rid of me, who'd seen his handwriting, still had five hundred of his dollars and the diamond ring, for all he knew. I began to puzzle about Lily's death—her suspicions of Victor Quade. He did have the ring. He had told me to put the money back in the drawer. He was, after all, a stranger. And now the title on his typewriter came flashing across my anguished brain—Murder on the Bluff! Was that just a coincidence? Or was he really a killer, so daring that he even herded his crimes?

All the while Hugh was talking to me, while the men went in a body across to the Castle drive. Hugh and I kept on behind them, and once I quickened my pace to catch up.

"Judy, you don't think that scarf being tied around her throat means that I strangled the poor woman. You know me better than that, don't you? I couldn't bear it if—if you suspected that—!" He found difficulty in going on; his face was in torment. "I swear that scarf—the spot on my sister's coat—the fact that my golf club was found—"

"I'll stay with her, Mr. Gerry."

The men had broken into the boat house easily enough, via the pane De Witt had smashed with Hugh's club that night on the lawn. All they had to do was reach in and unlock the garage window. But once inside the connecting door was quickly thrown open to reveal two rowboats and a canoe—all with worse holes in them than Uncle Wylie's!

"Well, gentlemen, does this tell you anything?" Victor asked the lot of us as we gazed, horrified, at the holes in the boats and canoe.

"Looks like there's a crazy man hidden around here somewhere," De Witt said, picking up a doorstop. "I think we ought to arm ourselves and continue our search."

"You mean—the Castle, too?" Potter's hand twisted nervously. Then he began hunting around for a weapon, finally tugging at an oar. A paint brush suited him better.

Some of them picked up rocks from outside. The minister opened a vicious-looking jackknife. I didn't feel too badly when Victor asked if Mr. Quincy and I would watch the exits. There were only the drive-ways and the sea ahead, but what should we do if a madman came leaping at us?

"You needn't fear," Victor said, divining my thoughts, as he so often had during this mutual experience of murder. "I'm sure we'll find no one."

"Queer how you should be sure," Hugh flung at him. "I'm not forgetting you knew where to find that poor woman."

"Better not say too much, Norcross," Victor's teeth gleamed in a half smile. Why, they might have been exchanging pleasantries! "Wasn't my scarf around her neck. Did your sister ever find that blue one of yours?"

"Damn you, Quade! Leave my sister out of this. Do you think she strangled the Kendall woman?"

"I think nothing. I'm only telling you to keep quiet—better for you in the end, the less you say."

"Why damn your dirty insinuation!"

Victor came out of the boat house and entered the garage. I wheeled Mr. Quincy close to the door, beside where Hugh stood scowling and sullen, but he forgot his anger as the men examined Roddy Lane's car

"Not a drop of gas in her!" De Witt discovered.

"Bet Lane had some when he drove in. Knew there wasn't a filling station this side of Rockville," Potter added.

"Remember how the fire burned last night?" Victor asked. "No wonder we heard the combustion. But that wouldn't account for the bridge."

"You think the killer drained the tank and threw the gasoline on the fish house?"

"Not on the fish house, De Witt. On the body inside."

Uncle Wylie stuck his head in the door. He had a piece of sailcloth under his arm. "Mrs. Gerry says to tell you lunch is ready," he said.

Nobody moved. "Well, I've told you, so 't ain't my fault if everything's cold. This do for down yonder?"

Victor nodded, and my uncle started off.

"Here, wait! Don't go alone, Uncle Wylie!" I shouted.

"He'll be O. K., Judy. Go with him if you wish," Mr. Quincy said, holding up his cane. "I've got this."

"Will he be all right—alone, Mr. Quade?"

"I don't see why not. Just left there, didn't we? He'll be a lot safer than we will." To see the glance Victor gave our crew made me shake in my boots.

They emerged from the garage and closed the door behind them. The Lane stables, perhaps I ought to have explained, were fairly new, having been built on the site of the old barn, the boat house and garage adjoining forming a rambling three-in-one structure which considerably annoyed Aunt Nella, as it hid part of the picturesque stone castle from the inn.

I began wheeling Mr. Quincy slowly up and down the drive, one eye on my Uncle Wylie approaching the perilous Pirate's Mouth, the other on the castle doors.

Quincy talked a blue streak, his tired old eyes searching the seascape.

"Don't see why somebody doesn't turn up," he said, pointing his cane toward town.

"We're off the beaten path."

"But tourists—holiday hell-bent-ers."

"That's just it. Nothing to go hell-bent over; no attractions that bring the mob, like Nantasket and Revere. Bathing's no good here, either. Rockville's the place. Got a fair beach along there. Ours," I indicated the tiny strip from the foot of the bluff to the woods back of our old barn, "too rocky—even with bathing shoes."

"Spose lots of folks are sleeping it off after the wild night before the Fourth. Never saw such a quiet place."

"Don't make me laugh! Did you say quiet, sir? Perhaps it's because so few people know there is a Pirate's Head. No houses on the Neck. Natives never come here except to sell milk and truck."

There wasn't a sign from the Castle, save occasionally a form at a window, which we decided was one of our party. Uncle Wylie disappeared from sight, and I closed my eyes and silently said a little prayer for him. In no time I saw him climbing back again, coming toward us.

I turned the wheelchair down the drive to meet him.

"Your Aunt Nella's gonna be hoppin' mad," he grinned. He rested a moment to learn what the men were doing. His kind old face sobered as he scratched his grizzled head, a gesture he indulged when upset.

"What you think, Mr. Quincy?" he asked. "Who is this Quade fellow, anyhow, Judy?"

We both tried to answer.

"I think Roddy Lane did it," Mr. Quincy said, "and blew the bridge up after him."

"No, you don't. He couldn't have strangled poor Lily," I said.

Uncle Wylie looked at me in surprise. "Who said she was strangled? Hit on the head, she was. That scarf didn't do no damage."

I clutched at him. "Are you sure?"

"Sartin, I'm sure." He lit his pipe, offering tobacco to Mr. Quincy, who never smoked. "Bump on her head big as an egg."

"Then maybe Norcross didn't do it."

"Norcross? Nope. That sister of his wouldn't leave him be long enough."

Somehow I felt a load lifted. I didn't want to think Bessie's brother guilty of all those hideous things.

"His club," Quincy reminded us. "Gerry, how come there's no boats on the cove coming over here, no picnickers?"

Uncle Wylie looked longingly at the Castle. I knew he was dying to join the search, but with a sigh he set his feet toward home. "Nothing doing here on the Fourth. Never is. Fireworks at Rockville tonight, though. Promised to take my wife. Better leave this business to the others and trail along, hadn't you, Judy?"

I knew I should go with him. What was I being paid for? But curiosity is more compelling than clamor. Besides, there came one of our guests. It was Albion Potter. He seemed relieved and said so.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

HIS name is Gordon Buck. Less than two years ago he was just another young caddie at the Shorehaven Golf Club, located at South Norwalk, Connecticut.

Not quite "just another caddie," for he showed such alertness at locating wild slices and wilder hooks, driven into wild landscapes, that he soon drew the nickname of "Gazer." Gazer Buck.

His golf club soon discovered that Gazer could follow the flight of the most erratic blows that ever careered from wood or iron.

Then war and the shadow of war came along. So Gazer, who was then in high school, decided to take a shot at the air corps. He tried and flunked his examination. In place of quitting he took a four-months workout with one of his high-school teachers. He worked day and night. After a long summer's effort he took the examination again—and this time he passed.

Gazer Buck wanted to be a pilot. No one worked harder for the test ahead—but they washed him out. Here was another heavy jolt—another strong temptation to call it off.

But Gazer Buck wasn't built that way. Recalling the fact that he had been able to follow the incredible inaccuracies of his club members and locate golf balls in places that even wild life shunned, he decided to take a crack at navigation.

In other words, the Gazer decided to be a stargazer where the celestial rough and the high heavens offered an even tougher job than golf could produce.

The Next Step

First turned down by the air corps, then washed out as a pilot, Gazer Buck switched over to the navigators' school.

He gave this third shot everything he had. His club members at Shorehaven had lost track of the eager, hustling, sweaty and often dirty-faced kid who had left them to help his country.

Somewhat to their surprise, the Gazer suddenly arrived in New York from his training in Texas. But he was no longer the scraggly little caddie they had known.

He was now Lieutenant Gordon "Gazer" Buck, the chief navigator of a four-motored bomber, on his way to one of the major fronts.

The Gazer had on his new uniform. He had the poise and coolness of a veteran. But he still had the same grin, and in many ways he was still the same young caddie his club members had known from a short while ago.

Not so many remembered that the Gazer had discarded the eight-hour day, the ten-hour day and the 12-hour day.

In the face of every discouragement that could be thrown into the heart of a kid, he had given the air force and his country a 16-hour day, with no thought of pay, to play out his part in winning the war.

He came out of Texas as one of the best young navigators the air force has yet known.

The Caddie Gazer of golf has now turned into the stargazer of a big bomber. And this has all happened in less than two years. And Lieutenant Gordon "Gazer" Buck isn't the only caddie you'll hear from later on. For most of these caddies have just about everything it takes, if you give them a chance. They are great kids. They were once the Hagens, Sarazens, Oumets, Chick Evanses, Ben Hogans, Byron Nelsons of a happier day.

The Spice of Life

Some philosopher once said that "variety is the spice of life." This new 1943 baseball season will at least be loaded with variety and spice.

It begins as an unknown quantity and the unknown part will soon become more and more pronounced.

We continue to get more and more indignant letters asking why athletes able to play baseball are not strong enough, or healthy enough, to serve in the armed forces, while so many clerks, elevator boys, boot-blacks and whatnots are passed through.

This is a problem that belongs to the draft boards. It is one of the great many things about which we know nothing. But there should be no feeling of any sort against the ballplayers.

Their names, ages, their complete records, are all in the hands or under the eyes of the country's draft boards. The ballplayers I know, many of them leading stars, are accepting the army and navy laws laid down.

Most of them have families. Wives and children. They are waiting to be told where they are needed most. They are willing to do their part—when they know what their part is.

So don't blame the ballplayers. Send your explosive comments to Washington and the draft boards. And this will get you nowhere.

The following is a letter we received from Pvt. Manning Hutson of the Marines, who is stationed somewhere in the Pacific:

"I received your letter with your gift inside. It will certainly come in very handy. I have moved since the last time I wrote you, and am at a place of rest for a while I hope.

I hear that a lot of my home town buddies are leaving for, or are in the service. I can't seem to picture that joyful little town without all the fellows hanging around the pool hall.

My mail is finally catching up with me and I am happy to say that I have several packages from Mom, and folks in town.

Well thanking you for the nice birthday gift and saying "Hello to all my Buddies".

I remain sincerely yours
Manning.

Buy Our Feeds

Our feeds are properly balanced with vitamins and cod liver oil. Nine times out of 10 low production and colds in chickens is caused by lack of Cod Liver Oil. We manufacture our own feeds and sell these high grade feeds for less than you can buy inferior grade feeds. We also manufacture a full line of Dairy, Hog, Goat and Rabbit and Poultry Feeds. Also Hog and Poultry and Dairy concentrates. Always the best is less.

THE 2ND WAR LOAN

STARTS APRIL 12

The Government of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. We can do it, and we MUST do it. Every American must realize the truth:

In this, our toughest war, we've made a good start. We've trained a lot of men—made a lot of weapons—built a lot of ships.

WE'VE GOT TO BUILD MORE!

We broke all records building 8 million tons of shipping last year. But grim-faced Army and Navy men will tell you that the 18 Million tons we're building this year STILL won't be enough.

WE'VE GOT TO FIGHT MORE!

From now till this war is won, America must be on the offensive. In ever-increasing numbers, your sons, brothers, husbands must go into actual battle. Our losses have already begun to mount—and they will not grow less.

AND WE'VE GOT TO BUY MORE WAR BONDS!

Sure we're all buying War Bonds now. But we've got to help pay for our increased fighting and building . . . We've got to match, as best we can, the sacrifice of those Americans who are toiling and sweating on a dozen battle-fronts—with the bloodiest yet to come. The blunt fact is this: to keep our war machine going, we've got to dig up 13 billion EXTRA dollars this month. 13 billion dollars over and above our regular War Bond buying!

In the next few weeks you may be visited by one of the thousands of volunteers who are contributing their time and effort to this Drive. But don't wait for him. Make up your mind now that before this drive is over, you're going to march right down to your nearest bank, Post Office, or place where they sell War Bonds, and do your duty. And don't ever forget this: in doing your duty, you're doing yourself one of the biggest favors of your life!

For United States War Bonds are the greatest investments in the world—bar none. They're investments tailored to fit your particular situation. And they give you the chance of a lifetime to order and GET the kind of world you want to live in after this war. Every cent you put in War Bonds now will help to guarantee plenty of peacetime jobs making peace-living for every one of us.

For your Country's sake—for your OWN sake—invest ALL YOU CAN!

THERE ARE 7 DIFFERENT TYPES OF U. S. GOVERNMENT SECURITIES—CHOOSE THE ONES BEST SUITED FOR YOU:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9 per cent a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75 per cent of maturity value.

2½ per cent Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $100,000—also $1,000,000 if registered. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Subject to Federal taxes only. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; 7-8 per cent Certificates of Indebtedness; 2 per cent Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; U. S. Savings Bonds Series "G."

DON'T LET DREADED
MASTITIS

Due to Streptococcus Agalactiae

ROB YOU OF YOUR PROFITS

There is good news for every farmer who has Mastitis in his herd. About ninety per cent of all Mastitis, or Garget, is caused by Streptococcus agalactiae. The new discovery, Beebe G-Lac, (Tyrothricin) consists of Gramicidin and Tyrothricin. Beebe G-Lac stops the action of Streptococcus agalactiae. If Mastitis, due to this microbe, is cutting into your milk production... if your best dairy cows are in danger—act now! Get Beebe G-Lac. You'll be amazed at the results. Beebe G-Lac is easy to inject into the teat canal. Beebe G-Lac does right to work. Don't let Mastitis (due to Streptococcus agalactiae) rob you of your profits. Get Beebe G-Lac today.

Let us arrange laboratory tests of milk samples from your cows. Only 15c per sample tested. Ask us for details. No obligation.

Let Us Have Faith

Besides buying War Bonds and Stamps, we here at home have a duty to perform to keep faith with the boys at the front. To keep ourselves financially strong so there'll be jobs and homes for them to come back to—and the kind of a country they're fighting for.

To this end this bank is co-operating with the people of our territory in every way possible. That is our duty, as we understand it.

TIPS ON WASHER CARE FROM PUBLIC SERVICE

"How I keep from Growing Old"

YOU'D never guess my age! But there's only one reason I look so young and work like a brand new washer. That's because my boss gives me special war-time care. She's smart. She knows she can't get a new washer now, so she's making sure I keep working for the duration.

Rub the tub—The tub should also be washed, but not scoured. Use a mild soap with warm water. And after rinsing the tub, use a soft cloth to dry it. Oh yes! and don't forget to remove the agitator and wash under it, too.

Save the cord—Be sure to keep the cord off the wet floor, never roll the washer over cord. Remember, too, when moving the machine, that the wringer should be directly over tub. It will prevent the washer from tipping.

Do as she does—It's very simple to follow my owner's example. The first thing to remember is to clean the washer after using it. Wash, rinse and dry wringer rolls, also release pressure to prevent rubber rolls from flattening.

Lady, be careful—Don't drop the agitator because it might chip the porcelain. The metal would then rust and eventually result in a leak. You ought to treat the enamel on your washer like you do the fine finish on your furniture.

Keep it under cover—When you are finished with the washer, cover it with a cloth to keep it free from dust and dirt. And remember, at the first sign of motor trouble, call an expert repair man. You'll save money in the end.

What about lubrication?

Well, it depends on the make and age of washer. No general instructions cover all types. So I suggest that you follow the manufacturer's instructions for lubricating your washer.

If you no longer have these instructions available, see your Electric Appliance dealer... and you'd better see him right soon, if your washer hasn't been lubricated recently.

Horse in Need of Conditioning Now

Important Factors In Care of Horses

Since the horse has returned to stay—for the duration at least—farmers should start now if they want to put their animals into top condition before spring work begins.

According to the department of animal pathology and hygiene at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, good feeding is essential, but consideration should also be given to methods of ridding horses of internal parasites. Bots live in the stomach, while roundworms, strongyles and other parasites live in the small and large intestine and, during certain stages of development, in other body tissues.

The best time to treat horses for parasites is during the winter months. Carbon disulphide is effective in ridding horses of bots and roundworms. Phenothiazine, the drug now so widely used for the control of internal parasites of sheep, is particularly effective in removing strongyles from the digestive tract.

There is, however, an element of danger in the treatment of horses for parasites. Such matters as correct dosage and methods of administration, as well as care given before and after treatment, require the skill and judgment of a veterinarian. A few farmers have used parasite control measures upon advice of a veterinarian for many years.

Two other things, trimming the feet and removing sharp corners from the teeth, should be taken care of before horses are harnessed for field work. These jobs can be done at the same time the horses are given treatment for parasites.

Agriculture in Industry

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Hardwoods

At the U. S. Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis., new wood uses have been uncovered which have been adopted by industry. Among these are wood plastics, made by heating millwaste with acids which convert it into a molding powder for floor tiles and switchboard panels.

Corrugating board for shipping containers is made from chestnut chips discarded after tannin is extracted. Black jack oak and red gum may be substituted as chestnut wood disappears through disease.

Over 200 recent buildings have utilized glued and laminated structural beams and arches which are made from cheap, low-grade small-sized boards put together under pressure. Prefabricated houses are being marketed with panels for walls, floors and roofs made from plywood glued to light frame.

Strong papers are being made for wrapping from maple, birch and aspen. Cellophane is made from pulped wood, treated chemically to convert it into jelly. This is filtered through narrow slits to become transparent sheets.

At a California lumber mill, red wood sawdust, chips and shavings are compacted under pressure into small logs sold for fireplaces, dining cars and ship galleys. Shredded red-wood bark, known as Palco wool, is being marketed for insulation. When finished, it is a fluffy material resembling a mass of red hair.

More Farm Machinery

Success in meeting farm production goals for 1943 will be dependent to a great extent upon getting the last possible ounce of help from machinery. Every piece of power farm equipment should be given a general overhauling to make certain it will be ready to operate when needed. Efforts also should be made to make community work schedules for tools which will not be used full-time on the farms of their owners. All this will help our war effort.

Jumper and Jacket.

HERE'S an ensemble that is young and gay whichever way you wear it. The jumper with snugly fitting bodice and easy going skirt makes a simply darling outfit worn over a blouse or sweater. For suit moods, wear the little fitted jacket over the jumper—nothing could be smarter!

Pattern No. 8243 is in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 jumper takes 2½ yards 39-inch material, jacket 1½ yards. Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers. Send your order to:

Continual opening of the gas or electric oven door changes the temperature and is said to be one of the most common causes of baking disappointments.

Much of the difficulty in growing house plants comes from keeping them too warm. Try putting your plants in a cool corner of the room and watch them perk up.

House plants grow toward the sun. Turn them frequently so that they will not grow one-sided.

Keep the broiling pan in your oven as clean as any of your other kitchen utensils. After using it wash it in plenty of hot water and soapsuds. Dry it perfectly before returning to the oven. Any moisture left on the pan may cause rust in the oven.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Seed-bearing pods high up in rubber trees when ripe go off with an audible pop. The pods, about the size of a goose egg, contain formations of gas which explode when ripe and throw the seed as far as 100 feet.

The French call rubber caoutchouc from an Indian term meaning "weeping tree."

Ninety per cent of roadside flats that plague car owners can be avoided. Checking air pressures while tires are cool, before inflating will show up tubes that are losing an abnormal amount of pressure due to slow leaks.

Temperatures, topography and types of roads as well as driving habit of owners account for wide variations in mileages from identical tires. These factors may account for a tire turning in from twenty to twenty-five thousand miles of service in Chicago whereas from seven to eight thousand miles may be the mileage it will render in Texas.
